Organiser's Comments

Llechweddgain is always a challenge: the terrain is a challenge for the experienced runner, and the surroundings are a challenge to get all the parts of a course together. Whilst the Blue and Brown were great courses across runnable rocky hillsides, we found it hard to fit in an Orange (never mind a Yellow), the Start was a bit of a walk away from anything, and even the Finish was away from the parking. In spite of the long walks, there seemed to be quite a few contented runners, even amongst those who missed a control or two.

There was a good turnout of nearly 30 runners, including 3 families, and a couple of groups who had come a long way. The weather closed in during the day and the mist caused a few to struggle with the contour detail, but it cleared up again for collecting.

The whole event was set up with just 3 (myself, Tom and Colin Darlington), and all controls were collected with myself, Tom and Ifan Oldfield. Thanks for making the event a success.
